Subject: ROHR TREND ALERT!!

Dear Alert Service Subscriber,

This is an early critical short-term view:

TYPO CORRECTION: We made reference to the FOMC influence having been on Thursday in yesterday's ALERT!! We presume our readers knew that was actually Wednesday afternoon, with the market influence spilling over into Thursday morning. Apologies for any confusion.

The analysis has now been switched over to the JUNE S&P 500 FUTURE in the wake of the MARCH contract expiration on Thursday's Close. Since Wednesday's more dovish FOMC announcement, projections revisions and Chair Yellen's press conference the US EQUITIES have been able to continue higher.

What is most interesting is the way in which the JUNE S&P 500 FUTURE, trading at an unusually large $10 discount to the MARCH future has been able to immediately make up the difference to push above the key higher resistance yesterday even prior to the March contract expiration. This was a very constructive sign. Yet it was no a huge surprise after the forbearance shown by the FOMC in lowering its likely further 2016 rate hikes in Wednesday's revised projections from 4 to only 2. That is also consistent with both the BoJ on Tuesday and the Bank of England on Thursday remaining very accommodative as well.

Here's the critical consideration today: The JUNE S&P 500 FUTURE swing up to the top of the 2,010-20 range after the FOMC on Wednesday was a new high for its current rally. Yet that only put it up to the front month resistance. And that it was able to surmount that range so timely Thursday morning was a very constructive sign for the overall trend psychology.

Having Closed above it Thursday after hitting the next interim higher resistance at 2,035 leaves that as the next key level. As it is also above 2,035 early this morning, the burden of proof is on the bears to knock it back down below it or likely suffer a further rally. Next interim resistances are 2,050 and 2,060 areas, with the ultimate more major resistance not until 2,075-85.

And of course, the 2,010-20 range is now significant lower support.
