Dear Alert Service Subscriber,
This is a critical short-term view:

While we had been circumspect on the JUNE S&P 500 FUTURE for the past couple of sessions, things are getting more interesting once again. The background remains the recovery from below some key support on Thursday in spite of the recent "Fear of Fed." That has squeezed the bears, as expected.

However, with it opening higher into more critical interim congestion once again this morning the decision on whether it is returning to a bullish trend or is ready to top out again in the near term should become apparent very soon.

Here's the critical consideration today: The June S&P 500 future late April weakness below 2,075-78 key support was especially telling. That was the 'Negation' of the 2,078 major weekly chart channel UP Break, and that zone remains the key higher resistance (with a Tolerance to 2,085.)

More recently once again below next lower critical support into the mid-April 2,060-55 area (mid-April daily gap higher) meant it was likely headed into a further selloff. That was also where it stalled once again last week Wednesday prior to the post-FOMC minutes release selloff. Yet for now the next important lower interim support at 2,035-32 held with some slippage last Thursday. That is indeed very important, because the weakness below that area was supposed to be a DOWN Break from a major daily Head & Shoulders Top.

Back up into the 2,055-60 area on this morning's gap higher creates some critical near term tension once again. The Tolerance of that resistance is last week Tuesday morning's gap lower from Monday's 2,062.50 Close. Much above that, a test of 2,075-78 is possible. However, any slippage back below 2,055 (also last Friday's high) after being up into 2,055-60 would be a weak sign.
