Subject: ROHR TREND ALERT!!

Dear Alert Service Subscriber,
This is a critical short-term view:

For further review of some key fundamental factors that may still weaken the equities, please see Monday's ALERT!! Other than those aspects the 'crisis' psychology that set in after the surprise UK referendum LEAVE the EU result three weeks ago became a full blown 'bad news is good news' influence.

And now the next shoe has fallen in that drama, as the Bank of England did NOT provide any immediate rate cut or further QE today. For many that was a surprise, yet with a clear indication it just wants to wait until it sees more into its August 4th meeting prior to moving. You can see its Statement here <http://bit.ly/29AGSSq>.

[For www.rohr-blog.com for subscribers, there will be a full assessment posted shortly. Look for the notification email soon.]

Here's the critical consideration today: The full recovery of the September S&P 500 future back above 2,060-55, 2,075-78 and 2,085 areas left the 2,100 area above that as the key resistance. Back above the 2,105 previous high of the rally the September S&P 500 future not only maintained that area. It also pushed up to Close last week in the area of the Friday June 24th (pre-Brexit) 2,120 high.

Along with 2,105, 2,120 was a key weekly Oscillator area, And while the ultimate resistance may have seemed to be the 2,132 May 2015 all-time futures high, that was not the next significant weekly Oscillator threshold above 2,105 and 2,120. That is not until the 2,150-55 (MA-41 plus 125-130) that it has pretty much now achieved and even exceeded in electronic trade overnight.

As important, the overnight attempt to overrun 2,150-55 has been defused in the wake of the 'no action' by the BoE, and it will now be very critical to see if it drops back below it. However, 2,120 and 2,105-00 remain support, even if there is a reaction back below 2,132.
