Dear Alert Service Subscriber,
This is a critical short-term view:

And now you see why it was both unproductive and unnecessary to hold any positions into the elections. As noted in our opening "Election Day USA: Stealth!" comment Tuesday morning (also see our www.rohr-blog.com post), there was going to be plenty of time to enter the equity market based on the assumption it was going to experience two-way swings whoever won the election.

And in fact, that is the case with a very interesting twist this morning: the Trump victory has not caused anything remotely resembling a traumatic 10% meltdown that the Democrats (and even quite a few conservatives) were projecting. Our assessment of that is the market's capacity to look past the immediate 'received wisdom' to reflect the intermediate-term outlook.

In this instance it is possible they are encouraged by the Trump constructive lower taxes and less regulation message, even if he was the worst possible messenger. With the likelihood that his worst instincts on trade and immigration will be moderated by the Republican Congress (also see Tuesday's post), the markets are left with the prospect of lower taxes and regulation. In any event, it is very interesting that they seem to be avoiding any sort of crisis response.

This is (still, amazingly enough) the critical consideration:

December S&P 500 future mid-October failure below 2,141.50 area stalled there on the subsequent rallies. Yet it was not all that negative until violation of 2,120 three weeks ago Thursday morning. That pointed to that Thursday's retest of more major 2,105-00 area that the market neared prior to rallying back strongly... Closing back above 2,120.

Also Closing back above 2,120 after the FBI selloff a week ago Friday seemed to reinforce it as interim support until last Tuesday's response to further revelations about the Clinton's and the incestuous relationships between their foundation, the Democratic National Committee, Hillary's time as Secretary of State, etc.

The Trump Trauma then caused the next violation of not just 2,120, but also 2,105-00. That said, there is 'internal' congestion below it in the 2,070 area, which is the broad Tolerance of the 2,105-00 support. It is interesting that the market was in an orderly decline toward that lower level since Closing below 2,105-00 last Tuesday. And then the latest FBI reversal left it quickly back above 2,105-00 on Monday and Tuesday.

And while the prospect of a Trump victory took it well below below 2,070 initially Tuesday night, it is now back above the 2,105-00 area. That points to the sort of stabilization which will allow for more orderly trading once again, if Mr. Trump takes a less bombastic view of forming his government. Higher resistance remains the 2,141.50 area noted above, with extended levels into 2,160 and 2,180 areas. Make sure you are implementing tight risk management in any event.
