Subject: ROHR TREND ALERT!!

Dear Alert Service Subscriber,
This is a critical short-term view:

Our overview remains much the same as previous on the markets capacity to look past the immediate 'received wisdom' on the initial US election shock to reflect a positive intermediate-term outlook. That has now extended into the near term lack of any good-sized reaction prior to pushing up into the far more major resistance (see below.)

Reinforcing the already anticipated upbeat US government policy changes into next year (yet not based on it), much of the US economic data last week turned more positive on everything from Retail Sales to housing. There is also the seasonal factor during good years in US equities covered in last Thursday morning's www.rohr-blog.com Commentary: 'Santa' Already in Town (redux), and we encourage subscribers to review it.

There was also fresh, extensive Rohr-Blog Commentary: Welcome Back to 'Normal' post over the weekend. It is important perspective on why the US domestic structural reform can drive current trends much further in light of the international context. Higher US equities, and much higher US dollar with much lower govies prices across time. We suggest a read for all blog subscribers.

This is the critical consideration:

By early the Wednesday post-US election morning December S&P 500 future had shaken off all of the initial Trump victory concerns, on the re-assessment that the Trump policies were actually quite a bit better than the current ones and those proposed by Secretary Clinton. That allowed the trend to recover not just up to but also above the major 2,105-00 area by the time of the US equities Regular Trading Hours opening that Wednesday morning.

In fact, shortly after that it was well back above the 2,120 resistance, also overrunning the more prominent 2,141.50 area, and next resistance into 2,155-60. (It was almost a $140 rally from last Wednesday's overnight low.)

Already above that as well by that Thursday morning, the next higher resistance is the 2,180 area that it is now up vigorously testing. It is important to note that this resistance extends up to the late-August 2,191.50 all-time lead S&P 500 future trading high. Yet due to the rise of weekly MA-41 the next weekly Oscillator resistance is up to 2,200-05 (i.e. on a new all-time high), with the next threshold not until 2,225-30 (MA-41 plus 125-130.)

All lower resistances are now support areas, including 2,180 after this morning's next push above it, with 2,160-55 that held well last week below that.
