Dear Alert Service Subscriber,
This is a critical short-term view:

We are coming to you a bit earlier than usual after the US equities 'Rambo Rally' finally saw just a bit more of a correction into Friday morning. However, after the Monday-Tuesday push to new highs that was still only giving back a goodly bit of last week's gains from the previous Friday's 2,348.00 weekly Close.

And as that was also only right back into the upwardly adjusted weekly Oscillator projections for this week (see below), by Friday's Close it had rallied back up to finish right up near the earlier high of the week. While we had felt it might be useful to wait until after the weekly Close to see how things progressed, this is another obvious example of a market that refuses to remain down on selloffs.

This is the critical consideration:

While we had noted it was getting a bit tedious to not see enough of a downside reaction to test the key lower support, the market found an excuse (likely the weak US retailer indications into Friday morning) to get a bit of short-term jitters. As noted above, that was very short-lived.

Due to sustained aggressive increases in weekly MA-41 (as it loses old lower Closes from the early 2016 selloff) March S&P 500 future extended weekly Oscillator levels are back to moving up roughly $7 each week. Most important at present is the extended weekly Oscillator resistance above the 2,300 area rises to the 2,347-52 range this week. So it will be support again on any retest with some Tolerance to the previous week's 2,348 Close.

If it continues to maintain the rally from no worse than that area, the ultimate Oscillator threshold is up into the 2,377-82 range (weekly MA-41 plus 190-195) this week, with lower supports below the 2,350 area remaining into the interim 2,320 and more major 2,300 area.
