Dear Alert Service Subscriber,
This is a critical short-term view:

As noted Wednesday morning, President Trump's productive discussion of his actual plans and their potential benefits for the US economy and society was just what was delivered, with a very important twist: the arrival of the 'conciliatory' Donald Trump, ready to be friends with everybody to get his administration's agenda implemented.

That was augmented Wednesday morning by comments from Treasury Secretary Mnuchin on the likelihood tax reform was on schedule, and an upbeat Fed Beige Book in the afternoon. While it has lapsed into a bit more of a correction after that additional new all-time high push, Wednesday's rally leaves a lot of room for moderate downside corrections while leaving the overall bullish trend intact.

This has been the case for all rallies since the US election dramatically changed the major economic and market sentiment for the better. What some observers have missed is the evolution of the US equities from a 'financial' (i.e. Fed driven) bull to an 'economic' bull. That means any attempt to view the 'age' of the bull markets is folly, even if it is now into key rally extension parameters (more below.)

For subscribers there will be a fresh Rohr-Blog (www.rohr-blog.com) post which includes a more extensive discussion of that bull market shift posted soon.

This is (still) the critical consideration:

Due to sustained aggressive increases in weekly MA-41 (as it loses old lower Closes from the early 2016 selloff) March S&P 500 future extended weekly Oscillator levels are back to moving up roughly $8 each week. Most important at present is the extended weekly Oscillator resistance above the 2,300 area rose to the 2,347-52 range this week. So it will be support again into next week when it moves up to the 2,355-60 range with congestion above it around 2,370.

As it has continued to rally from near-term support, the ultimate Oscillator threshold is up into the 2,377-82 range (weekly MA-41 plus 190-195) this week, rising to 2,385-90 next week that is already being seriously challenged. It is important to note that this sort of Oscillator threshold has only been seen at extreme extensions like early April 1998. However, even if it stalls it does not necessarily need to turn bearish. It can evolve into a churning bull with more downside reactions in between new highs, as occurred in 1998 and 1999.
