Dear Alert Service Subscriber,

We remain more circumspect on the JUNE S&P 500 FUTURE.

First of all, we hope everyone had an enjoyable Easter holiday weekend as our European and UK, Canadian and Australian friends return from Easter Monday.

You folks know how to party. And you are back just in time for the next episode of the “As the Fed Turns” soap opera. Yet while soap operas are frivolous melodramatic indulgences, the reversals by the Fed’s minions since the FOMC meeting two weeks ago are very real world... and potentially quite pernicious.

That makes Janet Yellen’s speech at 10:30 CDT this morning more critical than usual. Not knowing whether she will support the more dovish projections from the last FOMC meeting or the recent hawkish pronouncements on the April meeting being ‘live’ for a potential rate hike is going to be telling... and another good reason we want to sit back and wait for further trend developments prior to any decisive view.

Here’s the critical consideration today: The JUNE S&P 500 FUTURE holding into the 2,020-10 range last Thursday morning and rebounding later in the day is the sort of resilient sign we expected. Yet the whipsaw so far this week reinforces the degree to which we would rather observe right now. Getting back up to the 2,035 interim resistance Monday morning only to drop right back down to 2,027 and now 2,020 doesn’t seem to indicate anything, That is the top of the 2,020-10 support, which now has a Tolerance to 2,008. That makes patience a virtue.

That said, as long as it manages to hold the 2,020-10 area, it should still be able to rally to higher resistances. Those include reinstated 2,035, the additional interim resistances in the 2,050 and 2,060 areas, with the ultimate more major resistance not until 2,075-85.
