NOTICE: Friday's Global Advance PMI's have been reposted due to some degree of confusion on the part of quite a few research organizations on their release. While they were indeed released last Friday, very few reporting calendars listed them; quite a few had them scheduled for this morning. In deference to that and the return of quite a few of our readers from their summer holidays, we have decided to repost some very critical indications that contributed to the sharpness of last Friday's equities selloff. That is especially so for the Chinese indication being even weaker than expected.
